Child Fatality Review is the first text of its kind on the world market. This book contains complete information on child fatality review teams and is designed to serve team members, potential team members, and interested nonmembers as the only text they will need on death review. The volume details common types of child fatalities for professionals to use as a reference, including fully captioned photographs to help determine whether the fatality was the result of abuse.

Child Fatality Review describes the basic model of the child fatality review process and explains the role of each core member, including child abuse prevention professionals, medical examiners, coroners, pediatricians, prosecutors, law enforcement personnel, mental health professionals, child protective services members, domestic violence and substance abuse experts, vital statistics personnel, educators, and public health workers. Special sections identify potential resources for team members, as well as suggestions for outside expert consultants. A section on the future of child fatality review teams includes recommendations for the prevention of child deaths.

Also included are more than 500 high quality color photographs to explore and illustrate all aspects of child fatality in an effort to aid the professionals of this field. Chapters differentiate natural and nonnatural deaths and show specific modalities of violence.

This book is an ideal tool for anyone who works on or with a child fatality review team; it is also a reference asset to any medical library. In the arena of education, this text is a valuable teaching tool in university social work classes or law enforcement teaching facilities. Anyone potentially involved with a child fatality review team should not miss out on this one-of-a-kind resource.
